

September 2, 2017

Arensis buys Scotland-based wood pellet plant

BIOENERGY INSIGHT · IMAGE BY BIKINID60 / DREAMSTIME.COM

Arensis, an international provider of off-grid energy generation, has bought the Verdo pellet plant in Grangemouth, Scotland. The acquisition, part of a £50 million (€54m) UK investment plan, gives Arensis a sustainable, carbon-neutral fuel supply for its biomass energy generation.

Arensis provides off-grid, sustainable, carbon neutral energy generation to customers around the world using market-leading biomass energy generators from German manufacturer and sister company, Entrade. With 185 power systems in operation across the country, Arensis currently delivers 85% of all small-scale biomass generation in the UK.

CONTINUE READING